Revenue Agent Lucas Stirs
Up Things at This Place.

PAID $694 TO SHERIFF.

Many Doubt His Authority and Refuse to Pay.

Like some grim monster seeking whom he might cause trouble, Revenue Agent Frank A. Lucas haunted the county clerk's office for a week and a half waiting for his victims to whom he had sent notices to come in and pay alleged back taxes. Many of them came and handed over their little wad of greenbacks for economy's sake, but about 175, backed by the opinion of Auditor Hager, refused to come down with the spunkily until the question of Lucas' authority to collect goes through the courts.

Before leaving Mr. Lucas paid over to the sheriff $694 due the county as its share of the collections made by him. He also filed suits to the number of about 175 for taxes on mortgages not given in to the county assessor for several years past.

We learn that a member of the legal fraternity of this city disagrees with Auditor Hager as to Mr. Lucas' authority to collect taxes on mortgages and that the court of appeals some time since handed down an opinion in the matter, in which it affirmed that a deputy has a right to assess under special orders from the State auditor only, but has no right to collect save where he has secured a judgment in court for the State. One of our statutory lawyers, who has had occasion to look carefully into the matter, gives it as his opinion that Mr. Lucas had no right to make the collections he received here, as the law says only the sheriff shall make collections for taxes. The law in the State in regard to the collection of taxes on mortgages seems to be very unjust, as in many instances both mortgagee and mortgagor pay tax on the same property—of course a double tax. The General Assembly should afford a remedy.

NEW ELECTION COMMISSION

Miss Mary Clark entertained the Junior Set's Music Club at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claud Clark, on South Main street Tuesday evening. The pretty lawn was illuminated with Japanese lanterns. Refreshments were served, consisting of ices, cake, etc.

TUESDAY NIGHT
BIG SUCCESS.

Chappell, Roper and Hadden
Won the Three Prizes.

A NICE SUM NETTED.

Entertainment Wound Up
With an Enjoyable Dance.

Between 300 and 400 people attended the entertainment given at the Armory Tuesday night by Co. "D." All the officers and men entered into their part with an enthusiasm that furnished those present with a good deal of pleasure and amusement.

Sergeant James Chappell won the first prize as the best drilled man in the company. This prize was $5 in cash. Sergeant Chappell was heartily congratulated for his fine work. He has been an enthusiast ever since he joined the company and richly deserves the prize he won.

The second prize of $3 was awarded to private Wallis Roper as the second best drilled man. Mr. Roper's knowledge and execution of the manuals caused him to strongly contest Sergeant Chappell, and during the execution of the drill it was hard for an outsider to guess which of these two gentlemen and Corporal Hardy Hadden would win out. When Corporal Hadden was declared the winner as the third best man the opinion was almost unanimous that Maj. E. B. Bassett and Adjutant C. H. Tandy were correct and a friendly feeling prevailed among the military boys and those in attendance.

The silent drill was one of the most interesting drills and exhibited the wonderful precision in handling their arms Co. "D" has attained and aroused a feeling of pride in our home military company.

"Storming the fort" was watched with great interest. Our people have seen this in the circuses that have been here during the past two years, and were surprised to see our home boys accomplish a feat that almost equals that of professionals.

The funny part of the evening was something not on the program. This was the "blanketing," and the boy that was tossed in the air like a ball does not care to furnish amusement again for a crowd in the same way.

Equal praise is due the entire personnel of the company for the manner in which they acquitted themselves, but First Lieutenant E. W. Clark deserves special mention for making Co. "D" one of the best drilled companies in the State. He is at present the only commissioned officer in the company and for months has been patiently training the men and managing the affairs of his company.

As a grand finale to the evening's entertainment the young people enjoyed a dance until late into the night.

We are glad to learn that the proceeds of the entertainment netted the company a nice sum, which will be applied to incidental expenses during the encampment at Paducah.

McClure's Fiction Number

Booth Tarkington, Myra Kelly, Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews, O. Henry, James Hopper, and many other authors that magazine readers eagerly watch for are in McClure's August Fiction Number.

Every sort of story is included: the solemn, the funny, the significant, the dainty, the exciting. All have certain qualities in common—interest, truth, beauty. All these picked stories from picked writers are as good as, and in some cases better than, any stories their authors ever wrote.

This fiction number is McClure's Picture number. There are wonderful pictures in color, and in black and white. These pictures really illustrate and illuminate the stories they adorn. They contribute to a fuller enjoyment of the stories they are made for.

Aside from this fiction there is in this August number of McClure's Miss Tarbell's second and last paper on the character of John D. Rockefeller, and another of John McAuley Halpin's fine stories on business and politics, "Finances of the Shark System."

EVER WATCHFUL.

A Little Care Will Save Many Hopkinsville Readers Future Trouble.

Watch the kidney secretions. See that they have the amber hue of health;

The discharge not excessive or infrequent; contain no "brick-dust like sediment."

Doan's Kidney Pills will do this for you.

They watch the kidneys and cure them when they're sick.

Hopkinsville testimony proves it. J. W. Tunks, of 312 W. Seventh St., who is employed at the M. C. Forbes planing mill, says: "The condition of my health was such as to cause me a great deal of worry about my future. I had almost constant aching across the small of my back and the kidney secretions were highly colored, excessive and irregular. In fact, the disorder was so pronounced that it had been said I was bordered on diabetes. I also suffered at times with indigestion which caused me a great deal of distress. At one time I was scarcely able to do any work at all for nearly a year. I doctored and tried various remedies but nothing did me any permanent good until I used Doan's Kidney Pills which I procured at L. A. Johnson's drug store. I had them only a few days when I noticed a change for the better and by the time I had finished the box I found they had brought about so decided an improvement in my condition as to convince me of their real worth and I am more than thankful for the relief that I have received."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

ACROSS THE FIELDS AFAR.

I listen to the Sunday bells Across the fields afar, Beyond the hills of old, And the rustling of the wind, And every leaf and blade of grass, It calls me back again To pleasant land and sunny meads Of valley and hill.

I see the sunlit people stroll, And hear their passing feet, Again I see the little church, That fronts the village street. The quietude and peace they beckon me, The pulpit overhanging, And 'neath the marble stones above My own beloved dead.

Again in fancy leaning there, Within the corner pane, I hear the old-time friends and true, I hear the lowly murmur of The rills which run and sing; Again I see the pastor with His crown of olive hair.

The lilac bushes laden with Sweet censers, they distill Perfume and shower petals on The chilly air of fall. And Oh, the echoes softly fall And on and on! And Oh, the bells they call me to The little church again! —N. Y. Sun.

The HAUNTED AVENUE

By ETHEL BERT KENNETH

POPPY WALKS! The place has come to have that name, for all along the beaten paths the poppies have sown themselves and blossom, rose-pink, purple and scarlet, in rank rows. The house is not very old; it is the imperfection of the structure which gives it a defaced and dilapidated look. It is the garden, weedy garden and the neglected avenue, ankle-deep in black, fallen leaves, which shows Poppy Walks to be forsaken and forlorn. The grapevines have fallen from their trellises, the lilacs grow with hawthorn, and the rose vines trail, blossoming, upon the grass.

All was in perfect order when Kinross brought his beautiful young wife to Hillmore. As it was then called. She was very young; they had known each other only three months, but her heart was bound up in the handsome, imperious man.

"It is beautiful here, but you must let Victoire stay with me this summer," she said, clinging to his arm.

"Victoire will keep the house full of gaiety, and we want to be by ourselves, Marie," answered Kinross, smoothing the dark curls which lay against his breast.

"But I shall be lonesome while you are in the city, Gerald," she answered. "Victoire shall stay, then, if you like."

He had hardly seen Victoire D'Arcier than, little Marie's beautiful cousin, on the night of the ceremony she had been one of the bridesmaids, but she had not fallen in his way much since—handsome brunettes, with a peachy color and milky teeth. He remembered her face, and that she had come to Hillmore with one of the gay party. Now he looked at her more attentively, as she strolled on the terrace. He saw, with the eye of criticism, a ragged face, a voluptuous figure, a dress of rose-colored cashmere. Victoire D'Arcier, conscious of his gaze, as he stood at one of the long French windows, reached for a spray of trumpet flower, letting the loose, silken sleeves fall from her beautiful arms.

Gerald Kinross' gaze grew to one of absorbed passion; then his wife's little hand touched his arm, and he recoiled himself.

"Yes, Marie, everything shall be as you like at Hillmore."

The rest of the gay bridal party went away, but Victoire remained. That she was a beautiful woman was evident; that she was a pure one was doubtful. Gerald Kinross' downfall commenced from the morning she comprehended her bewitching beauty. He was a man of no depth of moral stability. The innocent eyes of his young wife saw nothing; her cooing heart suspected nothing.

She awoke one night, and through the open windows heard an unusual sound.

"Gerald," she said, "a storm is coming up. Hear the trees creak down the avenue!"

There was no answer. She stretched her hand toward her husband's pillow: it was unoccupied.

"He is restless, and has risen to walk and smoke for an hour upon the porch," she said, and fell asleep again.

But there was no wind. The sound she heard was that caused by two persons stepping into a carriage, which stood halfway down the long avenue.

The light vehicle awayed and its hinges creaked as they took their seats. Kinross tightened the lines, and the two high-bred horses stepped softly away.

Marie Kinross awoke in the morning and found her husband still absent from her chamber. She dressed, and went among the servants.

"Where is your master?"

They looked white and scared, and glanced at each other with bewilderment.

"Miss Victoire has gone, too," said one of the maids.

"What do you mean?" asked Marie, sharply.

"If you please, Mrs. Kinross," said the girl, "I heard people getting into a carriage last night, and horses' hoofs going down the avenue; and Miss Victoire did not sleep in her bed last night."

"And the carriage and horses are gone from the stable this morning," said Tony, the coachman.

Marie Kinross stood like one stunned for a moment. Then, with a sharp scream, she fell on the floor. They raised her, carried her to her chamber, and all day the lay in strong convulsions.

All day Kinross and Victoire D'Arcier traveled swiftly, until at night they reached a small stone church in an obscure country district. A storm was coming up. It was necessary that they should have shelter, and a bridal party passed out of the church as they entered.

"A fortunate occurrence," said Kinross. "We will be married, thus saving appearances and preventing gossip. If we find it necessary to stay here a few days."

The thunder crashed above their heads as they passed under the sacred arch. As they entered the church the lightning played through the stained glass of the high windows, and filled the church with mottled light. Victoire's beautiful face looked strange in the spectral atmosphere. Kinross, full of his guilty plan, pressed forward to the chancel.

Suddenly there was a stunning crash, and the very roof trembled upon their heads. The two, hand in hand, were stricken down in their sin, and buried beneath beam and stone.

The lightning had struck the iron cramps employed to support the building, and as it flew from bar to bar, smashed the stones which lay between.

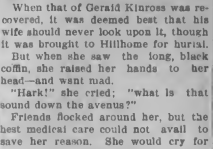

The building was a total wreck, and for three days the bodies lay hurried beneath it.

When that of Gerald Kinross was recovered, it was deemed best that his wife should never look upon it, though it was brought to Hillmore for burial.

But when she saw the long, black coffin, she raised her hands to her head—and wept madly.

"Hark!" she cried; "what is that sound down the avenue?"

Friends looked at her, but the best medical care could not avail to save her reason. She would cry for them to hush, and hark, and listen, until she gave them all the heart's sorrows she would cling to them, sobbing:

WITH A SHARP SCREAM SHE FELL ON THE FLOOR.

"I was so happy! What does it mean? What does it mean?"

They hoped that in the spring a beneficial change would come. But when her little babe was laid upon her breast she only moaned with pain, and took no notice of it.

She never knew her child, and the boy's brain was affected from his birth. Mother and child yet live—alone until both pass away the empty home will stand unused and decaying, so neglected that the weeds choke out the flowers, and so lonely that the bare floor festoons across the grounds. For rumour says that the long avenue is haunted, and it is true that if one steps inside the gate to gather, perhaps, a scarlet poppy, he will hear a creaking and rustling, as of a lady in a silken dress entering a light vehicle.—N. Y. Weekly.

LIVING ON FLOWER DIET.

The Chinese Have Several Such Dishes Which They Esteem Very Highly.

The flower diet suited to the Chinese palate and the one which is served with almost every elaborate Chinese dinner is the chrysanthemum, says Leslie's Monthly. The flower has a peculiar flavor and requires a taste educated by many trials before it can be fully appreciated; but Chinese epicures and a few New Yorkers who enjoy Chinese foods frequently pay fancy prices for chrysanthemum adapted for the Chinese chef to have prepared for them. The old-fashioned nasturtium, the rose and the violet seem to please the American taste, but the Chinese is always added by introducing the chaffing dish at table. The flower deserts are particularly adapted to the Chinese because of the blossoms' beauty and fragrance as well as the novelty of preparing them for food. To make the dessert, or one of the "blossoms," as some enthusiasts call it, first stir a thin batter of eggs and flour. This should be brought in from the kitchen already prepared, should be arranged in a glass vase on the sideboard. Have the chaffing dish ready, half filled with oil, smoking hot. Pick the petals from the flowers, stir briskly into the batter, then dip into a small portion and drop into the oil.

The fritters puff up instantly, and if taken out quickly they retain the color of the flower from which they are made. When removed from the oil they should be placed for a moment on absorbent paper before being dusted with powdered sugar and passed to the waiting guests, who are more than anxious to secure the flowers. The months' free storage. Insurance 25c first 60 days.

Catarrh being a constitutional dis-foundation of the disease, and giv-

Eruptions

The only way to get rid of pimples and other eruptions is to cleanse the blood, improve the digestion, stimu-

WENT NORTH.

P. J. Luster Passed Through Hopkinsville in His Flight.

Report That Suspected Wife
murderer is Also Involved With Company.

Guthrie, Ky., Aug. 2.—Nothing has been learned in regard to the Luster murder case. It is reported that P. J. Luster was involved in his accounts with the Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Company, but this cannot be relied upon, and there are several rumors as to the amount.
It is also claimed that he was a cocaine fiend, and it is probable that while under the influence of this drug he committed the crime.

A number of people claim that he had been addicted to this habit for a long time.

On Wednesday Luster got a sleeping portion from the drugstore to make his wife sleep, but it failed to have the desired effect, so on Thursday he got another prescription, and it is supposed he gave her some of this to make her sleep soundly so he could do his deadly work.

Mr. Jas. Rayl, a railroad employee, says he saw Luster get on the 5 o'clock northbound train Friday morning.

NOTED PACERS

And Trotters Now Quartered
on Fair Grounds.

The Kentucky and Tennessee fair at Guthrie promises to be one of the greatest events of the kind ever held in this part of the state.

Demands for catalogues and entry blankets are coming in not only from the states of Kentucky and Tennessee but from the states of Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Alabama, Louisiana, Georgia and Virginia.

The mile track is in record breaking condition, having been especially prepared, at great expense, by an experienced track and high class horseman.

A number of noted pacers and trotters are now quartered in the stables on the fair grounds.

The Kentucky and Tennessee Fair Association belongs to the Southern Fair Circuit, and gained a big advantage to its many patrons by being the first to give an exhibition this season.

The date of the fair is August 17, 18 and 19. The first day being "Dark Tobacco Growers' Day" will bring together the largest crowd ever seen at the Guthrie fair grounds. The Association has offered liberal premiums on tobacco, and arranged for some noted speakers to be present to address the Tobacco Growers on the evils of the trust, and the necessity of the farmers standing together as one man in this great fight, which means either prosperity or starvation to the thousands of honest farmers in the "Black Patch."

Special arrangements have been made with the L. & N. for reduced rates.

ICE CREAM

Supper for Benefit of School House Repairs.

An ice cream supper will be given at Laytonville Aug. 12, under the auspices of the Laytonville Bible Class. There will be speeches and music and a general good time is in store for those who attend. The proceeds from the sale of cream will be used for making some home needed repairs on the Laytonville school house.

Elaborate preparations are being made to entertain the visitors. The Hopkinsville brass band will play and there will also be other musical specialties.

Religious and educational speakers will be delivered. No admission.
All welcome.

HOPKINS COUNTY

Fair in Progress With Tremendous Crowds on Hand.

The great Hopkins county fair at Madisonville is in full blast and will continue the rest of the week. The attractions are varied and there is some fine stock on hand. There are four big races each day and numerous free acts in front of the grand stand. A special train will leave Hopkinsville this morning at 8:30 o'clock for Madisonville, and returning will reach this city at 7:30 this evening. This train will also be run out of here tomorrow and Saturday.
The rate will be one fare for the round trip. Already a large number from this section are at the fair, and the crowds tomorrow and the next day will doubtless be much larger.

is On.

The long talked of barbecue, under the auspices of the Tobacco Growers' Association, is being held

Hammonds have stopped at nothing to faithfully perform their duty and

WINNING BALL

Three-Bagger That Won Bride for Shortstop.

Cracking a three-bagger with two out and the bases full on July 4, has been won for P. J. Wells, shortstop of the Altoona, Iowa, team, a bride.
When at a critical stage of the game Wells stepped forward and almost knocked the cover off the ball. Gertrude Benefield, of Oklahoma City, who, with friends, was sitting in the grandstand, applauded more vigorously than her companions.
"Isn't he a dear!" she murmured.
"I want to meet him."

The meeting was arranged. It proved a case of love at first sight, the couple obtained a marriage license and the marriage occurred this week.

Don't forget the ice cream supper at Laytonville, Aug. 12. Good music, good speeches and a general good time promised all who attend.

"Pe-ru-na is the Medicine for the Poor Man."—Geo. A. Hughes.
CATARRH assumes different phases in different seasons of the year. In the early summer systemic catarrh is most prevalent.
That tired, worn-out feeling in nine cases out of ten is due to a catarrhal condition of the mucous membranes.

Mr. Geo. A. Hughes, 806 Mass. Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., writes:
"Pe-ru-na has done me more good than anything I have ever taken. I am forty-five years old now, and feel as good as I did at twenty. I was very thin and run down, but Pe-ru-na acted just right in my case. I am a carpenter and sometimes need a tonic. Pe-ru-na is the medicine for a poor man."—Geo. A. Hughes.

A Congressman Uses Pe-ru-na in His Family.

Hon. Thos. J. Henderson, Member of Congress from Illinois, and Lieutenant in the Union Army for eight years, writes from the Lemon building, Wash-

"Pe-ru-na has been used in my family with the very best results and I take pleasure in recommending your valuable remedy to my friends as a tonic and an effective cure for catarrh."— Thos. J. Henderson.

Pe-ru-na cleanses the mucous membranes and cures the catarrh wherever located.

GOOD MARKET.

Heavy Receipts and Sales of the Weed.

The local tobacco market is in excellent shape, both receipts and sales being heavy this week.

large quantity of the weed on the floor Tuesday and prices were very satisfactory.

The sales on the breaks yesterday were large. Quotations of last week were fully sustained.

Fraud Exposed.

A few counterfeiters have lately been thinking and trying to sell imi-you to beware of those people, who reputation of remedies which have been successfully curing disease for over 35 years. A sure protection, to you, is our name on the wrapper.

Look for it on all Dr. King's, or

It needs but little foresight to tell, that when your stomach and liver are badly affected, grave trouble is ahead says: "I had neuralgia of the liver and stomach, my heart was weakened, and I could not eat. I was very bad for a long time, but in Electric Bitters, I found just what I needed, me." Best medicine for weak

Princeton beat Paducah 3 to 2 Monday, Meyers winning the game. Barlow and McAndrews made one each of the three runs. The Hopkinsville trio are Princeton's best men.

TOBACCO MEN MEET.

Montgomery County Growers Hot After False Reports.

Clarksville, Tenn., July 31.—The members of the Dark Tobacco Growers' association held a rousing meeting here today with an unusually large attendance. Reports from the different chairmen showed a decrease of at least 20 per cent. from last year's crop. Encouraging news was received from the sales of tobacco controlled by the association and the farmers seemed more determined than ever to win their fight. Chairman Polk Prince read a report on the tobacco acreage sent out by the Agricultural Department and Secretary Wilson was criticised for refusing to give out the names of reporters from Clarksville and Hopkinsville. By a unanimous vote the Chairman was authorized to appoint a committee to memorialize Congress, urging them to demand a thorough investigation of the Agricultural Bureau and expose the false reports sent out to affect the tobacco market in the interest of the trusts. A motion approving the suggestion of marking up prices on tobacco and discontinuing sales for the present was carried by a large vote.

Bassett's Big Sale.

The big sale of Bassett & Co., which continues through the week, opened yesterday morning. At the opening hour a large crowd gathered round the front door waiting for a chance to get first choice of bargains. The crowd was so large that it was necessary to admit customers by sections.

THE FROZEN SHIP

A BRAVE DEED OF AN ATLANTIC SAILOR.

Hurricane Off St. John's—Decks and Mast Ice-Coated—Ship Springs a Leak—Captain Destroys Schooner.

A fierce wind shrieked over the schooner Amanda, sailing from Newfoundland. On the bridge, clad in oil-skin, stood Capt. Fitzgerald. Beside him was the mate. An anxious look rested on both men's faces. Before them the sea rose in a great, white-capped, heaving mass, and dark clouds moved swiftly across the sky. Sails reefed to their fullest, the waves bowed down under the weight of the ice. The thermometer sank low in its bulb, and the spray, dashed high in the rigging, froze instantly, covering the spars and rigging with a thick icy coat. On deck the ice lay a foot in thickness. Huge masses hung from the bridge, and the rails bent under the weight.

ONE BY ONE THEY SLID DOWN TO THE LITTLE BOAT.

A cry arose. The carpenter rushed to Capt. Fitzgerald. His face was white, in quick, shuddering words he made of an awful discovery. The ship had sprung a leak!

The pumps were quickly manned. All night the men labored. Morning brought no hope. There were now four feet of water in the well.

On board the ice now weighed many tons. All form of ship had vanished. It looked almost like an iceberg. Hopelessness marked every countenance. With the water in her hold dragging her down, and the ever-growing ice pressing heavily on the deck, the ship lay on the verge of foundering.

Realizing the desperateness of their plight, the captain ordered the vessel to be lightened. Anchors were cast overboard, cables, even the cargo, in the effort to raise her a few inches higher in the water.

On the fifth day of the storm, when the crew were almost ready to throw themselves down and let Fate work its way, a long black cloud appeared on the horizon. A ship was in sight.

A large vessel approached, moving rapidly through the waves. As she drew near, the watch on board the frost-bound schooner saw she was the Atlantic Transport company's liner Mesaba. From her bridge the captain started with amazement at the strange sight of what at first looked like an iceberg, then resolved into a little ship embedded in ice, and flying signals of distress.

A boat shot from the Mesaba's side, and made rapidly towards the Amanda. At the sight of it the worried men raised a feeble cheer, then rushed off to collect the more precious of their belongings.

One by one they climbed over the ice-covered bulwarks and slid down to the little boat that lay towing at the stern. Only Capt. Fitzgerald hesitated. A thought was in his mind. He dare not leave his ship—a derelict, drifting in the track of many ocean liners. The schooner must be destroyed.

Without a word he turned on his heels, and descended to his cabin. In a few minutes some volumes of smoke poured from the funnel.

Then the captain joined his comrades.

THE FIRST ONE.

I loved a girl when I was young.

A girl I dared not try to kiss.

Our love was shy and found no tongue,

But eyes told tales we could not miss.

The years have stretched a lifetime now,

And I have loved more girls than one;

And have kissed with dearest love,

And kissed before I knew I was done.

And that first girl I never met

After her angelic cold her head.

And I can't say my eyes were wet

When some one told that she was dead.

Yet there it is, she is the one.

The only one of women all.

Now that the lot is cast and done.

Whom dreams of day and night recall.

Only last night she came to me

Still silent, calm, and shy and sweet,

And then I learned what life might mean.

—Dream-drawn I sought my sweetheart's feet!

I laid my head upon her breast;

Within that haven reposed at last,

There came no echo save of rest,

From all the life-long weary past.

To each poor dot her day, we're told;

Of my queer luck here is the best;

I dreamed that girl, that girl of old.

—Careless my life I let against her breast.

A STRANGE MANUSCRIPT

BY TOM F. MORGAN

SOME time ago, a popular publication placed before its readers the story of "The Strange Manuscript Found in a Copper Cylinder."

While its startling revelations were only to be read with bated hair and breath on end, its disclosures must needs get up long before day to equal the darkened night those of the strange manuscript found in a sardine can.

While strolling in his garden the morning after the great storm, Prof. Bolivar Woodhead discovered a queerly marked sardine can, wrapped and tied in a cloth of strange hue and texture.

Upon prying open the can the pro-

HE DISCOVERED A QUEERLY MARKED SARDINE CAN.

fessor found that it was filled with a neatly-folded fabric, a good deal like paper. All over it was written a story that Prof. Woodhead read with absorbed interest.

The contents of the strange manuscript found in a sardine can were as follows:

"Kingdom of the Fool-Killer.

"Immolation Day.

"I, William Bignish, knowing that at any moment the Fool-Killer is liable to drop in upon me and make me the late Mr. Bignish, do write this with fear and trembling, and with a pen made of a sharp stick, keeping an eye on the rack where they are just now sawing in two a more than ordinarily deep spring post.

"Near at hand the 'Is-this-hot-enough-for-you?' man is roasting over a slow fire, and his unreserved yells disturb me a good deal. He isn't a bit stung by his howls.

"If I succeed in finishing this, and throwing it over the edge before the Fool-Killer gets to me, I hope it may fall into the hands of some one who will publish it as an awful warning to people who are smarter than the law allows.

"My intemperate indulgence in investigation in what has brought me here, where, cheered by the yells of the man who on earth left open the door, and now has his head eternally shut into one, I write and await the coming of the Fool-Killer.

"Throw investigation and invention to the dogs, I adjure you, and quit seeking to pry into the future, or, some day, the ruler of this drear realm will get you by the surprise skill of your neck and jerk you from happiness into misery.

"As an inventor, I was far from being a pretender like Keely. For a time I invented with impunity, and nothing befell me. Made reckless by continued success, I accomplished that which crippled all my efforts.

"I have no time to go into details. Sufficient to say that I fooled with forces and conditions until I succeeded in creating a gravity attraction as Keely's etheric force overcame men's resistance to humming and made them come down with the ducaits.

"The invention, which, for want of a better name, might have been called a gravity radiator, was packed in a valise. All I had to do was to grasp the handle, touch a spring, and up we would go.

"The first time I pressed the spring too hard, and, before I knew it, I was jerked up against the ceiling with a force that nearly cracked my intellectual radiance. I got the valves under control again and did not matter; suffice to say I lived through it.

"My next attempt was made out of doors. I would sail up as far as I liked in the air, I thought, then touch the spring softly and sail back to earth gently and safely. I went up all right, but, when I tried to descend, the basket spring would not work.

"Imagine my feelings if you have ever been on a 'high.' The spring positively refused to work. If I held on, I'd go up perhaps to worlds unknown.

If I let go, I'd be dashed to pieces on the rocks in Henderson's addition.

"Up, up, I went. I began to experience terrible pains in my cranium; my eyes bulged; my brain rattled like a lawn mower; bright flashes of light darted across my vision, and 75 millimeters of my crimson tongue hung out. A band of steel seemed compressing my intellectual lobes; my frontal region was all pain and confusion, and my gradual mood had become into dreamy indifference and unconsciousness.

"When I awoke I was in a strange country, an unknown planet, perhaps—the kingdom of the Fool-Killer, at any rate. Since then, I have been confined in a cage, the only sleeping accommodations of which consist of a large nail upon which I am expected to hang myself each night.

"Perhaps I could sleep even there, were it not for the proximity and awful groans of the man who, upon earth, used to be half as much in the crowd as I, kept there travelers out by sheer force of his dignity. His dignity avails him but little now, for here they stand him on his head as soon as the sun goes down, and there he stays till morning.

"It is pretty hard to sleep in the daytime, on account of the punishment that is inflicted upon the 'Beautiful Snow' poets. Every morning they are chained in a row, and a reader, with an accentless but stentorian voice, reads over and over to them their 'Beautiful Snows.' By way of variety, he reads backward half of the time. This goes on until sunset. The 'Spring' and 'June' and 'Silver Moon' poets get only half as much, and, in the afternoons, are allowed to rest and recuperate for the next day's reading.

"The midnight serenader is hung up in a cage close to the top of the highest turret, and made to sing, over and over again, the songs he used to sing to his lady fair, and everybody who has nothing else to do throws old boots and clubs at him.

"The man who said: 'I told you so!' has been hung. Always in life a scold, he is still kicking as he swings.

"Weather prophets are tied in pairs and hung over a great clockline in sight.

"A band composed of bazoons and bass drums, with a few tom-toms and cymbals, has been organized, and puts in ten hours per day in serenading the people who used to play the fife, fiddle and piano. Hand-organ men are slain at sight.

"People who only painted when 'the moon was right' are kept on a diet of skimmed water.

"The alrship and perpetual motion cranks occupy cages next to mine. The washing machine inventor has the entire laundry work of the kingdom to do.

"Every day a committee takes out the man who, on earth, was a sort of walking collection of ills, for which he was always doting or dosing himself, and they proceed to fill him to the brim with the latest fads in pills and nostrums.

"And so I might go on all day telling of the retribution that regularly befalls the unfortunates here. But time passes, and the vacation is little to be at hand at any moment. The only thing that, in a measure, reconciles me, is the fact that every one of these people deserves all they can get, and more, too. I've lived among them, and I ought to know.

"Every now and then the Fool-Killer holds a slaughter or immolation day, during which he kills off a number of the worst fools in his collection. This is the day, and, although nobody has told me, I fear my turn is at hand.

"As a last fearful word of warning, don't—But here he comes! I've just time to stuff this into the sardine can and throw it over the edge of the kingdom. He comes! He comes!

"Yours with hair on end,"

WILLIAM BIGNISH.

After he had finished the strange manuscript found in a sardine can, Prof. Woodhead looked himself into his den and pondered, and then, after he had weighed the matter over and over, and carefully cut up into kindling wood his elaborately constructed machine for making whistles out of pig tails, he laid the manuscript on a table.

INCREASE OF CASES

But the Fever Situation Seems Quite Hopeful.

QUARANTINE IRKSOME

Total Cases to Date Number 364—Deaths 68.

New Orleans, Aug. 2.—Although there was an increase in the number of deaths from yellow fever yesterday, the health authorities do not appear to be disturbed by the fact, claiming that this was naturally to be expected. They still seem sanguine of their ability to control the epidemic and claim that it is likely to prove a good thing for the city, as success in dealing with it proves that the disease will be no longer to be dreaded. The business interests of the city are trying to secure a modification of the stringent quarantines, which have had the effect of bottling up the city commercially.

KENNEDY LETTER.

Kennedy, Ky., July 31.—The little folks of this vicinity have had a nice time this last week. All of the little misses and messrs. of this vicinity were present. They enjoyed themselves very much.

Miss Corine Green and Mr. Frank G. Hoge came down from Hopkinsville Thursday evening and spent the night with Miss Mattie Barker. Mr. Hoge must be having a good deal of trouble in persuading Esq. Barker to subscribe for the Home phone, but we expect he has other business at the Squire's.

Miss Louree Galbreath returned to Hopkinsville a few days ago, after visiting Mrs. S. J. Rollow for several days.

Miss Bet Buckner, of Hopkinsville, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Green.

Henry Baynham came down and spent Sunday with his brother, T. J. Baynham.

Three More Days

And the # Great Mid-Summer Clearance Sale

Will Close.

With To-day, To-Morrow and Saturday our great sale will close, and the people of Hopkinsville and surrounding country will probably never have another opportunity to secure as great and unheard of bargains as we are offering in this sale, which has proven a success far beyond the expectations of anyone. Our store has been crowded with buyers every day during this sale. We patronized printers ink liberally and reaped the results therefrom, as such throngs of buyers were never before seen to attend a sale in Hopkinsville.

Now, we intend making the three remaining days the greatest of all in a bargain sense of the word and if you have not already gotten what you need come and supply yourself. Every day will be notable for its bargains, but Saturday will be the greatest of all days, so if you can't come before, be sure and come Saturday.

PACIFIC SUGAR PINE

A TREE COMPARABLE TO WHITE PINE OF EAST.

Grows Along Western Slope of Sierra Nevada—Used for Everything for Which White Pine Is Available—Second Growth.

Few users of wood know that on the Pacific coast there is a vast quantity of lumber comparable in all essential qualities with the best grades of white pine ever produced in the east. This is furnished by the sugar pine, a tree commonly found along the western slopes of the Sierra Nevada mountains in California. Even when compared with the giant "big trees" with which it often is found, the sugar pine is not a puny tree, but frequently reaches a diameter of ten feet and a height of 250 feet. A single tree has been known to yield 54,000 board feet of lumber, and trees smaller than 18 inches in diameter are seldom cut at present. These facts make it evident that sugar pine lumber, in respect to the sizes furnished, is far beyond the eastern white pine, even the pumpkin pine of the early days. The wood is scarcely distinguishable from white pine. It is practically the same weight and the same color. It is somewhat more resinous, however, and perhaps a little brasher. It is soft, straight-grained, and easily worked. It is used for everything for which white pine is available, and is especially valuable for pattern work. The wood is already finding its way into the eastern markets, and while it is not at all likely that anything but the best grades can be shipped long distances, there is no doubt that sugar pine lumber will more and more replace its eastern relative. There is no difficulty whatever in furnishing plank up to four feet in width and absolutely free of any defect, at a price that is low for material of that quality.

The cut of sugar pine lumber in California has increased from 55,000,000 board feet in 1900 to 120,000,000 feet in 1904, and it is estimated that there are 25,000,000,000 feet of it still standing. Sugar pine does not form extensive forests by itself, as the white pine of the east once did, but grows with western yellow pine, white fir, incense cedar and the "big trees." In northern California it is found at altitudes between 2,000 and 6,000 feet above the sea, and in southern California at altitudes between 5,000 and 10,000 feet.

The tree produces a large quantity of seeds, in cones that are 20 inches long. The seeds are large and edible, and consequently are sought by squirrels and other animals. The Indians also gather them to eat. On this account, and because the seedlings are easily killed during the first five years by lack of moisture and proper shade, the sugar pine does not reproduce itself readily, but the lumber is so valuable that there is every reason why an effort should be made to replace the trees that are cut down by others of the same kind.

Bureau of forestry studies made of its manner of growth indicate that this is entirely possible. A second growth of sugar pine may easily be secured by affording the forest in which the old trees are found reasonable protection, and by giving the young growth some aid in its struggle with the more vigorous competing species.

Discipline in Germany
The eccentricities peculiar to some of Germany's soldiers are obviously not to be found beneath the covers of Lieut. Billes' novel with a purpose. We learn from Cologne, "the city of one scent and a thousand smells," that an artillery officer, tried by court-martial at Strasbourg, has been sentenced to five months' imprisonment and reduction in rank, less punishment by the way, than was meted out to the book-writing Lieutenant, as a reward for his industry in inventing a new disciplinary measure. This was known as "reform by the nose," and was carried out by the officer sealing the noses of his men and twisting them. The cries of the victims were smothered—by order—by their comrades, who had to sing patriotic songs while the "reform" was put into force. Ironically enough, this gained the company the nickname of the "jolly squad."

PRESIDENT R. E. COOPER

Declines to Notice Unofficial Communications of the C. T. & T. Co.

The telephone controversy has about subsided. Mr. R. E. Cooper, President of the Home Company, when seen yesterday, said:

"When the recent scurrilous attack on the Home Company was made a month ago, I started out to fix the responsibility on the Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Co. This has at last been done, despite the statements of Messrs. Caldwell and Hume that the writer of the letters was not in their employ, so far as they knew. The confession of the writer himself that he was an employee of the rival company doing business in this county, has made the motives apparent to all. Whenever Messrs. Caldwell and Hume wish to propound questions themselves, their communications will be duly noticed. I shall dismiss the matter, by reaffirming that the books of the Home Telephone Company are open to the inspection of the stockholders, or any responsible gentleman interested in learning the financial standing of the company, at the office of the Treasurer, Mr. J. F. Garnett, President of the Planters' Bank & Trust Co."

The work of putting in the McKenzie exchange is progressing satisfactorily and the line to Clarksville will soon be completed down the Clarksville pike.

The Home Company is also pushing its long distance line northward and has already secured a franchise for Hanson and expected to get one for Madisonville last night.

CHURCH WEDDING.

Mississippi Marries Young Woman of Near Lafayette.

Mr. T. M. Whetstone, Jr., of Greenwood, Miss., and Miss Etha Baynham, of Rose Hill, Tenn., were united in marriage at the Methodist church at Lafayette last night. The Rev. A. G. Freed, of Montgomery county, Tenn., performed the ceremony, in the presence of a large number of the friends and relatives of the contracting parties.

The church was appropriately decorated for the occasion. Miss Sophia Bowling, of Guthrie, was maid of honor. The ushers were Messrs. Ed L. Weathers, Scott Winn, Lou Lican and Nick Baynham, the last named being a brother of the bride.

Immediately after the marriage Mr. Whetstone and his bride came to this city and left for Washington, D. C., where they will spend a month before going to their home in Mississippi.

The groom is a prominent young lawyer and leading business man of Greenwood. His bride is a daughter of Esq. Alex. Baynham and a niece of Mrs. C. H. Bnah, of this city. She is quite pretty and very popular.

GOING WEST

And May Decide to Locate in California.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Stowe, of this city, will leave for the Lewis and Clark Exposition to-morrow night. After spending a few days at the fair they will go to Redlands, California, to visit the family of Mr. Ed. Stowe. Mr. Stowe recently sold his fine farm of 350 acres, near Julian, to Mr. E. D. Jones for $19,000, possession to be given January 1, next. His visit to the West is in the nature of a prospecting tour and he may decide to locate on the Pacific coast in the near future.

5 MORE CARS! 5

Having had the biggest sale this year ever made by any firm in Hopkinsville, we were encouraged to order five cars more, later than we usually buy, for the months of August and September.

On this sale we will, on account of the low price we obtained, sell Buggies, Surreys and Phaeton at $5.00 to $20.00 each less than they have ever been sold in the city. Purchasers residing in Todd, Logan, Hopkins, Trigg and Caldwell counties, Ky., and Montgomery county, Tenn., will have their railroad fare both ways paid back to them, upon presentation of this coupon. This sale will continue until October 1st, 1905.
